An exposition of the Epistle to the Galatians A Practical Commentary Or an Exposition with Notes on the Epistle of Jude. Delivered (for the Most Part) in Sundry Weekly Lectures at Stoke-Newington in Middlesex The Works of John Owen, D.D.: An exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, with preliminary exercitations An Exposition of the Epistle to the Romans, Vol. 1 With Remarks on the Commentaries of Dr. Macknight, Profesor Moses Stuart, and Professor Tholuck (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Romans, Vol. 1: With Remarks on the Commentaries of Dr. Macknight, Profesor Moses Stuart, and Professor Tholuck This epistle has been equally an object of attention to those who admit the authority of Scripture, but follow their own wisdom in forming their system of religious doctrine. Salvation by grace, and salvation by works, are so inconsistent with each other, that it might well be supposed no attempt would ever be made to bring them into harmony. Still the attempt has been made. Human wisdom cannot receive the doctrine of the Epistle to the Romans, and men professing Christianity, cannot deny it to be a part of Scripture. What, then, is to be done? A compromise and peace are proclaimed between the wisdom of man and the revelation of God. All the ingenuity of Mr Locke, one of the most acute metaphysicians that ever appeared, has been exerted to bring Paul into accordance with human science. He and many others have laboured to give a view of this epistle, that may reconcile human merit with divine grace. An Exposition of the First Epistle to the Corinthians An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 4 of 4 With the Preliminary Exercitations (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 4 of 4: With the Preliminary Exercitations The way and means of our interest in the sacrifice of Christ, is by faith only; now, even in this state, it often falls out, that true believers have a conscience, judging and condemning them for sin, no less than they had under the law; but this trouble of conscience doth not arise hence, that sin is not perfectly expiated by the sacrifice of Christ, but only from an apprehension, that they have not a due interest in that sacrifice, and its benefits. On the contrary, under the Old Testaments, they questioned not their due interest in their sacrifices, which depended on the performance of the rite: belonging to them; but their consciences charged them Withthe guilt of sin, through an apprehension that their sacrifices could not perfectly expiate it; and this they found themselves led to by God's instituted repetition of them, which had not been done, if they could ever; make the worshippers perfect; but in the use of them, and by their frequent repetition, they were taught to look continually to the great expiatory sacrifice, whose virtue was, laid up for them in the promise, whereby they had peace with God. An Exposition of the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Hebrews, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Hebrews, Vol. 2 The first principle which the Apostle takes for granted as having been sufficiently proved, is thus expressed in our version Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which He hath consecrated for us through the vail, that is to say, His flesh. The Holiest of All An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from The Holiest of All: An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews The teaching of the Epistle is the divine answer to these questions. In every possible way it sets before us the truth that it is only the full and perfect knowledge of what Christ is and does for us that can bring us to a full and perfect Christian life. The knowledge of Christ Jesus that we need for conversion does not suffice for growth, for progress, for sanctification, for maturity. Just as there are two dispensations, the Old Testa ment and the New, and the saints of the Old, with all their faith and fear of God, could not obtain the more perfect life of the New, so with the two stages in the Christian life of which the Epistle speaks. Those who, through sloth, remain babes in Christ, and do not press on to maturity, are ever in danger of hardening their heart, of coming short and falling away. Only those who hold fast the beginning firm to the end, who give diligence to enter the rest, who press on unto perfection, do in very deed inherit and enjoy the wonderful new covenant blessings secured to us in Christ. And the great object of the Epistle is to show us that if we will but follow the Lord fully, and yield ourselves wholly to what God in Christ is ready to do, we shall find in the gospel and in Christ everything that we need for a life of joy and strength and final victory. The cure the Epistle has for all our failures and feebleness. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. An Exposition of the Epistle to the Ephesians, in a Series of Discourses With a Preliminary Sermon on the Evidences of the Gospel, Especially Those Derived from the Conversion, Ministry, and Writings of the Apostle Paul (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Ephesians, in a Series of Discourses: With a Preliminary Sermon on the Evidences of the Gospel, Especially Those Derived From the Conversion, Ministry, and Writings of the Apostle Paul Some subjects, on which the author has before published his sentiments, as baptism, the church, and the discrimination between true and false teachers, are here passed over in a summary way, lest this work should be too voluminous and it is probable that of those, who have not condescended to read his former publications, few will think this worthy of their perusal. But it doth not appear that these are any where so called; nor where they ever known by that name among the Jews, upon whose principles the apostle proceeds. Some seasons, indeed, under the gospel, in reference to some churches, are called the last days, but the whole time of the gospel, absolutely, is no where so termed. It is therefore, the last days of the Jewish church and state which were then drawing to their final abolition, that are here intended. The apostle takes it for granted, that the Jewish church state did yet continue; and proves that it was drawing to its period, chap. Viii, ult. Having its present standing in the forbearance of God. An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 2 of 4 With the Preliminary Excercitations (Classic Reprint) Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 2 of 4: With the Preliminary Excercitations Verses 1, 2. God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds. 1. The apostle's design. 2. The subject stated. 3. (I.) The law and gospel both agree in having God for their author. 4 - 6. (II.) The difference as to their revelation consists 1. In the times of their promulgation. 7 - 9 2. The manner of it. 10, 11. 3. Persons employed. 12. (III.) Jewish prejudices against the gospel obviated, by attending to 13. 1. The just statement of God's revealing his will by his Son. 14. 2. Several excellencies attending the revelation itself. 15. 3. The concessions of the Jews. 16. 4. The dignity and glory of Christ the revealer, who is, 17 - 20. (1.) Heir of all. 21. (2.) By appointment. And 22 - 24. (3.) Maker of the world. 25 - 36. (IV.) Doctrinal and practical observations. 1. The apostle's grand design, throughout this epistle is, to engage the Hebrews to constancy and perseverance in their attachment to the gospel with its fundamental doctrines; and his main argument, for that purpose, is taken from the immediate author, the promised Messiah, the Son of God. Him, therefore, in this chapter, he describes at large, declaring what he is absolutely, in his person and offices, and comparatively, with respect to other ministerial revealers of the mind and will of God; principally insisting on his excellency and pre-eminence above angels. 2. A comparison being intended in these verses between the Mosaical law and the gospel, and particularly in reference to their revelation and institution, the apostle shews; I. Wherein the law and gospel in that view do both agree. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 3 of 4 (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 3 of 4 In this verse, the general description of an high priest is given, from his original; he is taken from among men. From the nature of his office; he is ordained for men in things pertaining to God. From the special end of it; to offer both gifts and sacrifices for sin. And this subject, now first professedly entered upon, (but still with respect to the Old Testament church) is pursued With sundry occasional digressions, to the end of the tenth chapter. Judicious, and truly Spiritual Christians in the present day, are an incontestable proof of their intrinsic value. He often discovers, beyond dispute, great acuteness of thought, profound sentiments, and especially a solid judgment, in reference to the unadulterated Gospel; and, in the more practical and experimental parts of his writings, an uncommon degree of devotion, an alarming or melting animation, and spiritual fervor; qualities in an author, it must be owned, equally rare and invaluable! About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. An exposition of the Epistle to the Ephesians, a series of discourses An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 3 With Preliminary Exercitations (Classic Reprint) Forgotten Books Excerpt from An Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Vol. 3: With Preliminary Exercitations Tun general concernments of this Epistle, have all of them been discussed and cleared in the precedin Exercitations and Discourses. The things and matters con rmed in them, we therefore here suppose, and take for granted. And some of these are of such a nature, that without a demonstration of them, a' genuine and perspicuous declaration of the design of the author, and of the sense of the Epistle, cannot be well founded or carried on. Unto them therefore we must remit the reader, who desires to peruse the ensuing Exposition with pro fit and advantage. But yet, because the manner of the hand ling of things in those Discourses, may not be so suited to the minds of all who would willingly inquire into the Exposition itself, I shall here make an entrance into it, by Is in down some such general principles and circumstances of t e pistle, as may give a competent pros ct into the design and argument of the apostle, in the whole t areof.
